Because of the amount of large tobacco produced this year growers should watch the curing process carefully. With this kind of crop we run the danger of crowding barns and house burning.

* * *

This may come as a surprise but under certain conditions a corn grower can get a bigger return from lime than from the stock market. A $60 to $90 return within four to six years for each $10 to $15 invested.

Why not run some soil tests on your soils now?

Some research out of Tennessee closely correlates work done in this state on Orchard Grass.

1. Nitrogen fertilization of 200 to 300 pounds per acre can substantially increase hay production.

2. Harvesting the first growth at early joint, late-boot, or post bloom stage may be less detrimental to stand than harvesting at the bloom stage.

3. Earlier first-harvests may lead to more even distribution of production.

* * *

Sunflowers are being looked at very carefully as a source of oil. In an adjoining state the average yield of the high-oil varieties was 1700 pounds of seed per acre. Compound this with a yield of 2400 pounds of soybeans per acre.

However, the oil content of sunflower seed is about twice as high as that of soybeans.

Have you ever determined your discretionary income? This is income that you have a choice in how it's spent.

Discretionary income is that portion of your income that is left after paying rent, house payments, taxes, utilities, installment payments, or other pretty well fixed expenses.

* * *

After saying several weeks ago that we knew of no farmer owning a tractor with a cab resistance cab, we now know of at least one. O. H. Tolley has one -- congratulations -- safety devices are important as more sophisticated machines are used.

* * *

This may sound strange but I'm of the opinion that within the next several weeks is the best time to select your 1970 corn hybrids.

Check your fields carefully and also those of your neighbor.

There will be no profit in repeating this year's mistakes next year.

Planting one bushel of the wrong hybrid in 1970 may cost you 20 to 30 bushels of corn every three acres.

O.K., so what are you going to look for?

Maturity -- did all your silage come in at the same time? Was it early enough to use high school labor and still make high quality silage? Could you pick it early enough to sow small grain?

Yield -- Did your hybrid have a high yield? This is second most important consideration.

Stress Ability -- drought and high plant population causes stress; can your hybrids take it?

Standability -- the most important consideration. Corn must be standing to be mechanically harvested.

Harvestability -- if you're using a sheller, having a cob that hangs together is important.

Appearance -- you can't sell it. Select a hybrid that will stand up, stand stress and fill the crib.

Barley Included In 1970 Feed Grain Program

Announcement has been made by the U.S. Department of Agriculture that barley will be included in the 1970 feed grain program. Decision to include barley in the program follows the September 10 crop report which indicates a record new national average yield of 44.4 bushels per acre.

Until 1960, annual barley yields since 1866 had averaged less than 30 bushels per acre. In 1960, the crop average was 30.9, in 1955, it was 35.1; in 1967, 40.6; and this year, 44.4. Although harvested acreage has been declining, the larger yields have resulted in production increases.

Currently, the 1969 crop of barley is indicated to be 416 million bushels. Carryover as of July 1 this year was 198 million bushels – up about 60 million bushels over a year earlier. The total supply would be 624 million bushels for 1969-70. Total utilization in 1968 was 368 million bushels. It appears a further increase in carryover is probable as of July 1, 1970.

Other provisions of the 1970 feed grain program will be announced in the near future.

Polled Hereford Sale Oct. 13

The first consignment sale sponsored by the Virginia Polled Hereford Association promises to be an outstanding event. Approximately 60 head of bulls and heifers have been consigned by 20 Polled Hereford breeders throughout the Old Dominion. The sale will be held on Monday, October the 13th, at 7:00 p.m. at the Culpeper Agricultural Enterprises in Culpeper, Virginia.

The cattle were picked from the top of the herds listed below during a recent Selection Committee trip. Members of this committee were Bill Parry, Eastern Representative of the American Polled Hereford Association; Waller Callison, Jr., Co-Chairman of the Sale Committee; and Owen Thomas, III, Sales Manager.

Seven bulls and fifty-five heifers were selected on the basis of pedigree, conformation, and rate of growth from the following herds in Virginia: G. E. Callihan, Saltville; W. D. Young Glade Spring; Fotheringay Farms, Elliston; Red Bank Farm, Hollins; Summerdean Farm, Staunton; Holly Hill Farm, Mt. Sidney; Robin Rost Farms, Broadway; Ray Rudacille, Boonsville; Green Meadows Farm, Standardsville; Riverdale Farms, Charlottesville; Oakencroft, Charlottesville; Bevismont Farm, North Garden; F. T. Duncan, Faber, Waterfield Farm, Midlothian; The Old Hundred Farm, Richmond; Knoll Crest Farm, Rod Hyase; Homewood Farm, Monroe; Ottervae Farm, Forest; and Spring Lake Farm, Moneta.

Many believe that this offering will be the best set of Polled Herefords ever sold in Virginia. Every Hereford breeder should make a special effort to attend this very selective sale on October the 13th.

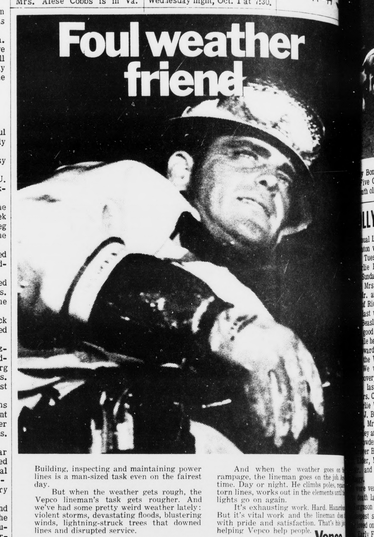
Foul weather friend



Building, inspecting and maintaining power lines is a man-sized task even on the fairest day.

But when the weather gets rough, the Vepco lineman's task gets rougher. And we've had some pretty weird weather lately: violent storms, devastating floods, blustering winds, lightning-struck trees that downed lines and disrupted service.

And when the weather goes on a rampage, the lineman goes on the job in a hurry. Day or night. He climbs poles and storm lines, works out in the elements and lights go on again.

It's exhausting work. Hard. Risky. But it's vital work and the lineman does it with pride and satisfaction. That's how he's helping Vepco help people.
